The Anti Politics Machine Development

In a close examination of the attempted implementation of the Thaba-Tseka project in Lesotho, Ferguson shows how such a misguided approach plays out, how, in fact, the "development" apparatus in Lesotho acts as an "anti-politics machine," everywhere whisking political realities out of sight and all the while performing, almost unnoticed, its own pre-eminently political operation of strengthening the state presence in the local region. James Ferguson is an associate professor of anthropology ...

Ferguson. This book is a critique of the concept of "development" in general, viewed through the lens of failed attempts, specifically the Thaba-Tseka Development Project in Lesotho from 1975–1984. He writes about the countless "development agencies" that have their hand in the so-called "Third World" but points out the consistent failure of these agencies to bring about any sort of economic stability. This is what Ferguson calls the ...

The Anti-Politics Machine Summary | SuperSummary

In naïve effort to bridge this gap a host of aid projects and development schemes are plotted onto less developed countries. But what is development really? James Ferguson attempts to explore this concept in his book "The Anti-Politics Machine: 'Development', Depoliticization and Bureaucratic Power in Lesotho". The book is an extension of Ferguson's PhD dissertation and was published in 1990 by Cambridge University Press.

Book Review on James Ferguson's 'Anti-Politics Machine ...

January 11, 2017. Thanks for the throw-back! The Anti-Politics Machine was the most impactful book I read in my 4 years as an anthropology student at the University of Cape Town (and I graduated 1992, so it's not a 1994 publication, it's 1990).

Is the Anti-Politics machine still a good critique of the ...

The Anti-Politics Machine is an acutely critical, highly imaginative excursion into the world of 'development.' It succeeds splendidly in unmasking the ideological scaffolding of that world, in revealing its unspoken axioms and taken-for-granted forms. Although focused on Lesotho, the study has almost universal resonances.
