Monday Morning Club

The Monday Morning Club: Youre Not Alone Encouragement For Women in Ministry began with Claudia and her mother and sisters, who were all married to men in the ministry. They would e-mail each other on Monday mornings when they needed a friend to talk to, someone to share my joys without jealousy and hear my frustrations without judgement whether Sundays were thrilling or discouraging.

I love both the previous Monday Morning Cooking Club books, but this one is a real treasure trove. And it is just what I feel we need right now. It is so full of warmth and deliciousness, and emanates that loving cosiness that comes from the sharing of family recipes. Honestly, it was hard to choose just one recipe to share with you.

Today is our national holiday to honor the birthday and legacy of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. He dreamed what seemed to be an impossible dream. He dreamed of a different world, and he lived his short life to do all that he could to change it. He chose a different path than many around him. Maybe they were afraid. The white people had the money and the power. Perhaps they felt Dr. King's dream ...

Every so often I receive a notice on my cellphone that says, "Upgrade available, we recommend that you upgrade your operating system." There will also be a note that explains why they are offering the upgrade. It usually reads like, it will fix these bugs, add these features, correct these problems. I didn't even know there was some bugs or that it needed new features, but I go ahead and ...
