Smith is a powerful and persuasive rejoinder to those in the evangelical academy who persist in pushing the now discredited canard that postmodernism is incompatible with both historical Christianity and the history of orthodoxy. Smith weaves an incredibly insightful exposition of three key postmodern philosophers--Derrida, Lyotard, and Foucault--with illustrations from both popular media and culture.

One of the reasons postmodernism has been the bogeyman for the Christian church is that we have become so thoroughly modern. But while postmodernism may be the enemy of our modernity, it can be an ally of our ancient heritage. In short, it might just be these Parisians who can help us be the church. Specifically, each of the analyses made by these postmodern theorists entails a twofold effect for the church:

In Who's Afraid of Postmodernism? Taking Derrida, Lyotard, and Foucault to Church, Smith presents a rigorous investigation of some of the main arguments of postmodern thinkers that is both accurate, concise, and accessible for those unfamiliar with postmodern thought. Reformed Christians like Cornelius Van Til and Francis Schaeffer have a good deal in common with the postmodernists, who like these theologians rejected the idea of an unbiased or objective knowledge of the world.
